I felt like the world had stopped last week when I pulled up to the busy traffic circle near my house to find that there were no cars moving in the normally busy, frantic and hectic area. Instead of pulling into the circle, which for once was clear, I paused to see what had happened. It took me a minute to notice the small woman with silver hair and a cane who was making her way across all the lanes from the center of the circle to the sidewalk that surrounded it. All cars were stopped, waiting patiently for her to get to the other side. There was no honking or rushing on as soon as she passed. For just this moment, everything was still. I was heartened by the generosity and grace around me.

This year has required both. In spite of the hardship and loss or perhaps because of it, this year brought enormous and sometimes unexpected generosity. I see it up close from my vantage point in the center of so much giving. I see nonprofits generously giving to those in need. Earlier this year, organizations turned on a dime to find new ways to continue their missions, determined to not leave anyone behind whom they could help. I've seen hundreds of individuals step up to volunteer their time and talents when they must also be facing unusual demands and stress. To support these efforts, donors have given financial support along the way. Donations keep nonprofit doors open, but mean much more than that. I don't know if donors understand all that their support means to the spirits of those working in a nonprofit. When I tell donors that their gift made my day, I'm not exaggerating. Your gift means you value our work. Your gift means you believe in us and trust us to make the world a better place. Your gift keeps us going in more ways than you know.

Generosity quickly turns to grace. When the pandemic hit, we all plowed ahead as quickly and effectively as we could. We have asked much of ourselves and others, even though stress, fear and anxiety rarely bring out the best in people. So this year I'm particularly conscious of the need for grace. This holiday season, I'm hoping for grace from my friends, colleagues and family, and I'm working hard to give it back. It's the only way to sustain ourselves and each other in unimaginable circumstances. This year, if ever there was one, is the time to reset our expectations of ourselves and others and to assume the best of intentions. When we look back, we'll remember the grace we received and extended.

As we move through December, the end of the year is most welcome. Prospects for the new year are promising, but there's more to get through before this year's experience is behind us. As we work our way forward, I hope you continue to give generously to those in need and those who help them. I hope you find grace from others when you are having a tough day. And I wish you small moments that make you smile, bring you joy, and inspire wonder.

Thank you for your generosity and your grace. From all of us at Compass, we wish you happy holidays and a much better year in 2021.

Warmest regards,
Suzanne

JOIN COMPASS VOLUNTEERS AND GIVE TO COMPASS

In the past month, nearly 230 volunteers across all three Compass Cities donated over $30,000 to Compass. Funding supports our unique pro bono consulting program, ensuring we have the infrastructure and staff to carefully select, train and support our nonprofit clients and volunteers who reach deep into the community.

We appreciate our volunteers for ALL that they do for Compass, but we can't do our work with their support alone. Please join this year's volunteers by making a tax-deductible gift to Compass. You can make a secure donation here. Thank you.

ONE WEEK LEFT: WORLD BANK 200% MATCHING ENDS DEC. 17

The Community Connections Campaign (CCC) is the World Bank Group's staff-driven workplace giving program. World Bank Group staff, consultants and retirees around the world may pledge to the CCC and have their pledges matched. This year, the World Bank Group has increased its 100% match to a 200% match due to the extreme circumstances resulting from the COVID-19 global pandemic. Thank you to the Compass donors who have given through the CCC in past years. In order to participate in the CCC next year, Compass must receive support from at least 10 donors.

We hope those connected to the World Bank will support us this year. If you do, we'd love to hear from you so we can track your gift and let you know when we receive it! Thank you in advance!
