Compass Pro Bono Expands to New York City, Bringing Strategic Pro Bono Support to NYC Nonprofits

New York, NY — January 13 — Compass Pro Bono, a national nonprofit that connects skilled business professionals with nonprofits in need of strategic support, today announced the official launch of its New York City location. The expansion marks Compass Pro Bono's fifth location nationwide, further advancing the organization's vision of a thriving, integrated nonprofit sector in every community.

Since its founding in 2001, Compass Pro Bono has partnered with nonprofits to deliver high-impact, pro bono consulting and governance support through its signature programs, On Track, On Demand, and On Board. The New York City launch will bring these services to local nonprofits while engaging experienced corporate professionals eager to apply their expertise in service of the social sector.

With its expansion into New York City, Compass Pro Bono will begin building local volunteer cohorts and onboarding nonprofits interested in receiving strategic support. Programs include short-term consulting engagements designed to address immediate organizational challenges, as well as board placement and training to strengthen long-term nonprofit leadership.

"New York City is home to an extraordinary nonprofit community doing vital work every day. Compass Pro Bono is honored to now be able to curate strategic, bespoke pro bono support that helps NYC's critical community institutions continue to grow stronger and more sustainable. We could not be more excited to build meaningful partnerships and deepen our impact in a city known for its innovation and its drive to strengthen communities," said Compass Pro Bono CEO Bethany Rubin Henderson.

The launch of Compass Pro Bono New York was spearheaded by David Blair, Compass Pro Bono New York Founding Board Chair and current Director at Warburg Pincus, whose leadership and commitment played a critical role in establishing Compass Pro Bono in the city.

"New York City has no shortage of passionate nonprofit leaders or talented corporate professionals who want to make a difference," said David. "Bringing Compass Pro Bono to New York is about creating a bridge between those two groups, so that expertise and purpose come together in service of stronger organizations and healthier communities. I'm proud to help launch this work in a city with such immense potential for impact."
